Easter in Other Lands

OF ALL annual festivals among Christian nations, Easter seems to have made the most serious impression, and the customs connected with its first celebrations to have lingered the longest. Europe, with many nations, and, therefore, many peoples, has ever been the scene of various ceremonies distinctly belonging to the separate countries, with the Latin church always in the lead in the matter of picturesque symbols and processions.

Strange customs, sometimes combined with elaborate ceremonies, are found oftentimes in the rural districts, where the people have no free access to the towns, and simplicity of living does not question the difference between truth and tradition.

In Brittany many interesting customs are observed. It is a land of legends. The very people, quaintly dressed as they were a thousand years ago, suggest legends and traditions. When the faith of the Nazarene was first preached to their ancestors they held the mammoth stones which abound in the fields and countryside in deep veneration.

The church united stories of wonderful stones with the word of Christ, so that its teaching might sooner develop converts. Fete days were held in high esteem, and many queer beliefs and associations became entangled with the festivals.

On Easter morning at the Church of St. Cronley, in the village of Finistere, Brittany, every man, woman and child of the vicinity is in attendance. The women and children are in their best frocks and snowiest caps, and the men are leading the cattle to the door of this church, which would do credit to a city of size.

There the priest receives the men and animals, and while the women cluster around, gravely listening, the cattle are blessed and the care of St. Cronley invoked in their behalf. This saint is a great favorite all over Brittany; and like so many traditions of the Bretons, his story is connected with the giant stones. It appears that he was a bishop of Rome, came up to the province to convert the heathen.

He was hunted by wild men until death seemed near, when suddenly every pursuer was turned into a stone, and so they stand today, one group forming a regular border along the road from Carnac to Kerlesant.

Mourning many of these stones are crucifixes and on Easter morning the little processions passing through the fields and along the road to the nearest church stop and rest a few moments and offer up an Easter prayer. In scattered communities, where there are few towns, an Easter service is often held in the fields, and a sermon preached from a wayside shrine, set in one of the historical stones.

CLING TO ANCIENT CUSTOMS

In Rural England Forms of Easter Celebration Indulged in for Centuries Are Still Kept Up.

The mention of hot cross buns immediately suggests England, where they are used more universally than perhaps any other country. And while England is not a Catholic country, so-called, rural customs of all kinds, religious and otherwise, have an unusually firm hold. One of the very strangest Easter-day customs is called the harepie festival, enacted in Leicestershire, at the village of Hallaton. Every Easter morning a brass band heads a procession which takes in most everybody in the town.

They parade through the streets and after a short service at the Episcopal church the rector, aided by two or three officials of the village, cuts up a large rabbit pie, which has been baked for the occasion. These pieces of pie are fought for by boys and young men, down a hillside called Hare Bank, and it is considered something to be proud of to deserve the largest cut of the pastry.

This is followed by a feast in the principal tavern or church, and ale in abundance is consumed, an affair which precedes a football match famous over the whole of the county, and looked forward to by thousands of spectators every year.

EASTER begins, like all deep things, in mystery, and it ends, like all high things, in a great courage. We are not beaten; that is its message to the mind. We cannot be beaten; that is its message to the heart.

Easter Fires.
The early Saxons used to light Easter fires on the hills in expression of their joy; this custom only died out in the early part of the nineteenth century. It is only observed up to this day in the "Woods of Teutoburg," where, on the eve of Easter Sunday, the fires are lit, as of old.

Season of Hope.
Lift up your hearts, Easter is the festival of hope, the day of certainty.

Glad to Learn of It.
Coughs that follow La Grippe, or any deep-seated hacking cough, will wear down the strongest man or woman if allowed to continue; C. Smith, 1421 12th St., Augusta, Ga., writes: "I got one 25c bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar and my cough and cold is about well. I was glad to learn of a great medicine like that."—F. A. Morris, Canfield, Adv.

TO THE FIRST
Speak, silent, patient gun!
And let thy muffled voice
Proclaim the deed is done—
Made is the nobler choice;
To every waiting people run
And bid the world rejoice.

Tell them our heaving heart
Has found its smiling hand,
That craves to be a part
Of the divine command.

Speak, prove us more than esse or mart,
And vindicate the land.

Thine shall the glory be
To muffle the foe's hour
Thou shalt the freer
Will neither cringe nor cower.

God give thy voice divinity,
That Right be armed with Power.

Thou art not lifeless steel
With but a number given,
But messenger of weal
Hot with the wrath of Heaven.

Go earn the right to Honor's seal—
To have for Honor's strain.

Lead us in holy ire
The path our fathers trod;
The music of thy fire
Shall thrill them through the sod.

The smoke of all thy righteous choir
Is incense unto God.

And when long Peace is found
And thou hast earned thy rest,
And in thy cave of sound
The sparrow builds her nest,

By Liberty shalt thou be crowned
Of all thy comrades, beat.

The Day of Lilies

A LILY grows mysteriously, pushing up its solid weight of stem and leaf in the teeth of gravity. Shaped into beauty by secret and invisible fingers, the flower develops we know not how. But we do not wonder at it. Every day the thing is done; it is Nature, it is God. We are spiritual enough at least to understand that. When the soul rises slowly above the world pushing up its delicate virtues in the teeth of sin, shaping itself mysteriously into the image of Christ, the power is not of man.

There is no day so inspiring, not only to the Christian, but to the careless and indifferent, as Easter, bringing, as it does, so much of God's love even in the display of Almighty power, to an otherwise hopeless life, in making possible the assurance of a world and a life beyond the grave.

ON FIRST EASTER DAY

Beautiful Scriptural Reading of the Savior's Rise From the Tomb and Greeting to Mary Magdalene.

John 20:1-16.

THE first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulcher, and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulcher.

Then she runneth, and cometh to Simon Peter and to the other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulcher, and we know not where they have laid him.

Peter therefore went forth, and that other disciple, and came unto the sepulcher.

So they ran both together: and the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the sepulcher.

And he stooping down, and looking in, saw the linen clothes lying; yet went he not in.

Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the sepulcher, and seeth the linen clothes lie.

And the napkin that was about his head, not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapped in a place by itself.

Then came in that other disciple, which came first to the sepulcher, and he saw, and believed.

For as yet they knew not the Scripture, that he must rise again from the dead.

Then the disciples went away again unto their own home.

But Mary stood within at the sepulcher weeping; and as she wept, she stooped down and looked into the sepulcher.

And seeth two angels sitting, the one at the head, the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabbouni, which is to say, Master.
